Hello, this is Marc Racicot with a message about volunteering in Montana. In these times of change, crisis in the lives of individuals and families is much more prevalent, even in Montana. Many times, just having someone to talk with can save so much -- can help a teen make a positive decision, or avert a tragedy in a family, and help prevent physical or emotional harm that can take years to heal. As a volunteer, you can play a crucial role in crisis prevention. You can answer hot-line telephones, provide respite care, or just lend a friendly ear for a neighbor who needs someone to talk with. After all, neighbors helping neighbors is a great Montana tradition.
